Establishment: Zagreb, 1904-12-22

History and Programme:
The Croatian Peasant Party (HSS) is the legitimate successor of the Croatian Popular Peasant Party established in Zagreb, 1904, which was active without interruption from 1919, under the name of the Croatian Republican Peasant Party and from 1925 to 1941, under its present name. In 1941, it was forced to cease activities in the homeland. Its legitimacy and continuity was based on the Party's illegal existence in Croatia from 1941, and its leadership was active in exile until December, 1989, when the activities of the Party were renewed in the homeland (Renewal Assembly held on December 15, 1989). In 1991, the Central Committee from abroad transferred its mandate to the elected leadership of the Party in Croatia. The founders of the Party, Antun and Stjepan Radić, were replaced at its head by Dr Vladko Maček in 1929, and he was replaced by Dr Juraj Krnjević in 1964. The Central Committee was elected in 1980, with Dr Josip Torbar at its head. Drago Stipac was elected president of the HSS at the 1991 Convention. At the Assembly of the HSS, in December, 1994, Zlatko Tomčić, was elected president of the Party.

To achieve its goals, the Croatian Peasant Party depends on all classes of people, especially on the peasants who are the pillars of the preservation of Croatian national identity. The HSS achieves its goals in accordance with the teachings and policies of Stjepan and Antun Radić, based on principles of humanity and peacemaking. The activities of the Party are directed toward the development of the Croatian State on the principles of humanity, democracy, peacemaking, rule of law, social justice, environmental protection, as well as an economy based on family business and business communities.

At the last legislative elections held on 3 January 2000, the centre coalition led by the HSS gained 24 seats (14.7% of the total votes), 16 out of which were gained by the HSS. The President of the HSS Zlatko Tomčić was elected President of the Croatian Parliament. Within the Croatian Government, established after the 2000 elections, the HSS held three (out of 19) ministerial positions: Božidar Pankretić, M.Sc., Minister of Agriculture and Forestry; Željko Pecek, Minister of Crafts, Small and Medium Enterprises; and Vladimir Strugar, D.Sc., Minister of Education and Sports. The HSS considers these three ministers particularly important for the implementation of the party’s program.

In the “new” Croatian Government, which was formed on 1 August 2002, the HSS became the second largest party. Besides the three former HSS ministers, who remained in the Government, the Vice President of the HSS Ante Simonić Ph.D became one of the Government’s Vice Presidents. At the last local elections held in May 2001, the HSS won eight (out of 20) seats of county prefects. The party is highly represented in municipalities and towns all over Croatia.

History and Programme:
The Social Democratic Action of Croatia (ASH) was established at a session of its Assembly on October 22, 1994, in light of the fact that the Socialist Party of Croatia (that is, the Socialist League - League of Socialists of Croatia, established on June 2, 1990) passed a decision at its Congress held on October 21, 1994, to change its name to the Social Democratic Action of Croatia, also changing the name of its highest body to Sabor (Assembly).
The ASH is a political party whose goal is to structure the Republic of Croatia by democratic means, on the principles and traditions of the Croatian and European social democratic movement. The aim is to effect the Republic of Croatia as an independent, lawful and social (welfare) state, founded on democracy, human rights, ethnic, religious, cultural and political freedoms, as well as to recognize the regional specificities of the Republic of Croatia. One of the main aims is the enforcement of democratic political institutions through cooperation with all political forces of liberal, socialist and Christian principles which accept democracy and the overall tradition of anti-fascism and anti-totalitarianism. The proclaimed goal of the ASH is to overcome the crisis in the Croatian social democratic left wing by implementing a new programme through which Croatia would offer a social democratic alternative founded on the experience of European social democracy, while taking into account the specific circumstances and problems in Croatia. The ASH will also promote the protection of human rights and support democratic institutions, market economy and free enterprise, as well as the establishment of modern welfare-state institutions.
The first president of ASH was Mika Tripalo, one of the leaders of the “Croatian Spring” and a member of the Assembly at the time of the foundation of the party. After his death, Silvije Degen was elected president of ASH at its second special Assembly, held on 29 June, 1996. Professor Zlatko Klarić was elected president of ASH at the Third Assembly held on 24 November, 2001.

Following the principles of human rights and freedoms, regionalism, and the historic specificities of Istria (especially multi-ethnicity), the IDS promotes the following: the development of regions in the Republic of Croatia and the constitution of the Euro-region of Istria as a permanent form of cooperation of parts of Istria in Croatia, Slovenia and Italy; a parliamentary republic founded on the concept of a civil society; a free market, yet limited by the instruments of a welfare state.

History and Programme:
The Croatian Social Liberal Party (HSLS) was founded on May 20, 1989, under the name of the Croatian Social and Liberal Association. It was the first democratic party founded in Croatia during the Communist regime. The first president of the Party was Slavko Goldstein. In 1990, Dražen Budiša was elected president. From February, 1996 until November 1997 Vlado Gotovac was president, after which Dražen Budiša was re-elected. From July 2001 until the 10th Assembly (February 2, 2002) Jozo Radoš was acting president and at the 10th Assembly Dražen Budiša was again re-elected president.
At the first democratic elections in Croatia, in April 1990, the HSLS joined the Coalition of National Agreement. The 1992 and 1993 elections strengthened the position of the HSLS as the most powerful opposition party.
The elections held on January 3, 2000, were won by a coalition of the HSLS and the SDP who formed a government together with four other parties (HSS, HNS, LS and IDS). The HSLS held five ministerial positions and that of the Deputy Prime Minister. The party also provided several deputy and assistant ministers. In July 2002 the HSLS's Big Council concluded that the above mentioned coalition had ceased to exist and the HSLS once more became an opposition party.
The sixth HSLS Assembly was held in 1996, at which a decision was taken to establish an annual HSLS award, called "Velimir Teržić", to honour contributions to the development of democracy and social justice in the Republic of Croatia.
The HSLS is a party of the political centre whose main concern is the individual, and that believes that a community is free only when each and every individual, as its highest value, is free and socially secure. It promotes the following: the Croatian State as a republic of liberal democracy where all of its citizens have the same rights; social cohesion which may be established only through a balance of interests of the business class and capital on the one hand, and the working class on the other hand, as well as through liberal and neo-liberal concepts which are integrated in the programmes of most political parties in parliamentary democracies.
The general principles of liberalism which are the foundations of the HSLS and which are promoted by the party are: all people have equal and inalienable rights (physical and spiritual inviolability, freedom of speech and public appearance and association, as well as the right to a protected environment), the right to limit the arbitrariness of authority (the right of citizens to be treated in accordance with the law), the right to basic health care and welfare, education, choice of employment, economic freedoms - freedom of enterprise, freedom and opportunity to develop all particular features (personal, collective, regional, cultural, and others); demilitarization and disarmament; tolerance and political dialogue; a multi-party democracy state with a strict division of power and an independent judicial system; institutional protection of minority or individual opinion and autonomy of the economic, cultural and spiritual life of the individual.

The Croatian Democratic Union (HDZ) was established in Zagreb, on June 17, 1989. In its membership and structure, the HDZ is the largest Croatian party both in Croatia and abroad. In all multi-party democratic elections to date, it has gained a majority in the parliament - Sabor, as well as in regional and local bodies of authority. The Croatian Democratic Union is a popular party which brings together all classes of Croatian people and other citizens of Croatia. Its programme is founded on the principles of Christian civilization and its goal is to democratically link all people who are prepared to implement the fundamental and universally humane values of Christian civilization and ethics in their public and political work, with the aim of achieving the spiritual and material renaissance of Croatia.

History and Programme:
Based on the decision of the General Assembly of the Croatian Democratic Party (HDS) and the General Assembly of the Croatian Christian Democratic Party (HKDS) of December 19, 1992, the two parties were united into the Croatian Christian Democratic Union (HKDU), while retaining their legal status as independent parties in the transitional period. The establishment of the Union was an expression of the necessity to create a strong and productive Croatian Christian Democratic Party. At the very beginning of the foundation of the Union the role of the late Ivan Cesar was of immense significance in transmitting the experience of the German CDU in CSU as well and other Christian Democratic and popular parties in Europe. The HKDU is a political organization that links, by democratic means, all those who accept basic human values and are connected by Christian views and ethics in their public and political activities.
The HKDU promotes a free and independent Croatia, true democracy in a rule-of-law state with unselfish care for human dignity and protection of life from conception to death, taking care of the happiness and prosperity of each and every citizen, regardless of the social group he/she belongs to.

History and Programme:
The Croatian Liberation Movement (HOP) was founded by Dr Ante Pavelić in Buenos Aires (Argentina) on June 8, 1956. Its goals were the disintegration of Yugoslavia, the fight against communism and establishment of a free, independent and sovereign state of Croatia. Since then HOP has been active worldwide without interruption. It was active in Croatia illegally until 1991, in spite of human casualties, court cases, and persecutions. From that time HOP has acted as a party of Croatian nationalists. It aims to attract not only emigrants but all Croats (young and old) that acknowledge three political principles to fight for an integral Croatia, a strong Croatian army and a just Croatia where there will be few poor and rich people but mostly people of the middle class.
The HOP is a political organization based on the teachings of Dr Ante Starčević and Stjepan Radić, along with other prominent figures in recent Croatian history. It supports an autonomous, sovereign, and independent Croatian state.
The basic principles presented in the Party Platform are: plea for a Croatian state on its entire historic and ethnic territory; decentralization; independent judiciary; politically neutral army; market-oriented economy based on farm businesses; protection of the family; religious freedom; environmental protection, and full legal and cultural protection of minorities and ethnic groups in the Republic of Croatia.

History and Programme:
The Croatian Republican Union (HRZ) was founded on June 15, 1991, as a continuation of a party founded in Buenos Aires by a group of Croatian political emigrants in 1951, under the name "Croatian Republican Party" (HRS).

The HRZ is a party of the right centre. Its principles represent a synthesis of the national policy of Starčević and modern social and economic solidarity type trends. It has supported the necessity for total freedom, a system of social market economy, and social justice. The HRZ considers that every historically created nation, including the Croatian nation, has the right of deciding about itself, its social system and future, and the right to establish its sovereignty in the form of a free and independent state. Croatia's basic tasks are: protection of the national community from external enemies, relations with other states, internal security and protection of life, work and property, education of youth, public health, social welfare and assurance of basic human rights, protection of nature and the environment. State administration needs to be decentralised with the main goal of protection and promotion of individual initiative and responsibilities, as well as assurance of real freedom and equality of all residents. The judiciary must be independent. The law must guarantee the right to a family home, possession of basic units of land and tools on a farm and basic tools for craftsmen and professional occupations, minimal income sufficient for the elementary needs of a four-member family, health and social insurance and welfare that corresponds to the economic strength of the country. Banking must be regulated by the law and under permanent supervision (but not leadership) of the state by an independent institution. The tax system must be simple, understandable to everybody, functional and just. The HRZ considers that the family is the foundation of society, and that the young must have equal educational opportunities regardless of their parent's income.

The Alliance of the Croatian Littoral and Highland Region (PGS) is a political party active in the entire area of the Republic of Croatia with a focus on the Rijeka region. Slavonska 15

tel: (031) 500-553
fax: (031) 500-553

Establishment: Zagreb, 1990-02-17

History and Programme:
Central European Action is a European regional movement that brings together citizens whose goal is the welfare and prosperity of Central Europe as a region of sovereign states and as a continent of nation-states.
The SEA upholds the multi macro-regional political concept of Europe that would reticulate big regions such as: Central European, Balkan, Roman, North European and East European. These regions would represent complete integral geographic, economic, cultural etc. entities founded on mutual similarity and common interest as a necessary prerequisite for every serious community, without creating the political, mechanistic or federative formations that are part of European history. The SEA considers that this would restore a natural balance between big European forces and their sphere of influence and co-prosperity, that would help to halt the decline of civilization on the European continent and in the world. The SEA considers that Central Europe is a model of a desirable regional community because it has a common historical, cultural and civilizational origin. The SEA pleads for a referendum in all Central European states in connection with joining a possible Central European Regional Community as well as a referendum on the European Union. It considers the concept of a united Europe as desired by the European Union (EU) (and rests on pan-economism) is nothing but an unnatural political formation, the second 20th century political Utopia after communism. The SEA believes that Utopian formations create from our continent a destructive Tower of Babel, and not a prospective community founded on co-operative nation-states.

Reference:

The Party was established on February 17, 1990 in Zagreb as the Democratic Action of Croatia (DAH). It participated on first multi-party elections as part of the Croatian Democratic Bloc together with the HDZ. At the General Assembly meeting of June 14, 1992 the DAH adopted a new programme under the name of Central European Manifest and changed its name to Central European Action (SEA).

History and Programme:
The founding assembly of the Croatian Democratic Peasant Party (HDSS) was held in Zagreb on September 18, 1994, and the party was officially registered on July 24, 1996. The HDSS programme reflects its right-centre orientation based on the nation-building ideas of Dr Ante Starčević and socio-economic teachings of Dr Stjepan Radić, adapted to the current situation in Croatia, as well as the party's openness and commitment to all Croatian citizens.

HDSS supports the concept of an integral, independent and democratic Croatian state. It is primarily concerned with the issues of the economy, convinced that economic progress can be achieved by the establishment of a market economy, free enterprise and with the assistance of experts, regardless of their party affiliation; it is also focused on agriculture based on the development of family farms and health food production. It supports: a reassessment of the country's transformation of ownership; a rationalization of State administration; parliamentary democracy; division of power into three branches and the independence of the judiciary; tolerance and dialogue; decentralization; multiparty monitoring of elections; State television transformed into public television; Croatia's admittance to European and Euro-Atlantic integrations. The HDSS motto is: "Trust in God & Croatian life in concord."

Establishment: Kupinec, 1995-10-02

History and Programme:
The Croatian Citizen and Peasant Party (HGSS) was founded in Kupinec on 2 October 1995. It is a modern political party primarily representing the urban and rural middle class population, in an effort to see Croatia develop as a modern and democratic state. The HGSS is a party of Croatian people and all of Croatia's citizens committed to creating a better life in Croatia based on the principles of freedom, civilization, and respect of particular features of all Croatian regions. These principles, adapted to modern times and open to the future, are rooted in the political and social ideas of the Radić brothers and other leaders of the Croatian peasant and populist movement. As a modern European party, the HGSS promotes: political pluralism (liberated from democratic centralism, party discipline and hierarchy-related responsibilities); open democratic dialogue; voting according to one's conscience; freedom of opinion and speech; independent union movement; workers' participation in trade companies' management; local self-government separated from the state administration; faster economic growth based on the protection of the environment; more efficient use of all Croatia's human, scientific and material resources on the principles of polycentricity and dispersion; encouragement of family farms to reverse continued rural stagnation; and revision of transformation and privatization processes which have shown numerous irregularities due to the relevant regulations insufficiently harmonized with Article 48 Paragraph 2 of the Constitution of the Republic of Croatia.

Establishment: Split, 1996-05-11

History and Programme:
The Founding Assembly of Croatia's Dalmatian Home (HDD) was held in Split on May 11, 1996, after the steering committee introduced the "Initiative for establishing the political party Croatia's Dalmatian Home," a document with five items, in February of the same year. It made its first appearance in the 1997 election for the seats of the House of Županije (i.e. Counties) of the Parliament of the Republic of Croatia-Sabor and for local self-government units; at that time, one of its members was elected to the District Council.

The HDD is a regional party which is primarily active in the region of Dalmatia, but it is also a national party representing the interests of the Croatian people. In this sense, in cooperation with other Croatian political parties of a similar programme orientation, it is active on the entire territory of Croatia.

Croatia's Dalmatian Home programme principles are based on natural law and Christian ethics as the essential and original values of European civilization, that is to say, on the premise that a civil society and a social market economy are the framework for the development of modern states. The social element in the market economy must correct the implementation of market laws by introducing new principles into business: justice and solidarity. A civil society is, on the other hand, a social replacement for the market because it ensures the implementation of basic democratic principles. Thus the state should be organized on the principle of subsidiaries, i.e. authority should be on such a level where it would be closest to the individual, because this is the most effective way and because the state actually exists in order to affirm and protect the rights of the individual, the family, and regional communities.

The PPS is an autonomous political party that aims by political and other legal means to achieve the overall material, intellectual and moral development of the Serbian ethnic community and development of the Danube-basin region in Croatia. The Party was founded during the peaceful reintegration of Slavonia, Baranya and Western Syrmia, as the autochthonic political party of the Serbian national community. According to its programmatic, which involves the development of economic, international-judicial and cultural bonds based on western democracy, the PPS works against any form of communist awareness towards true transformation within world, scientific and cultural achievements, as a fundamental moving force for state, political, economic, moral and spiritual connection with Europe. The development of the Serbian national being is understood as being completely unconnected with any concept of or any form of hegemony or ultranationalism, yet within the framework of constant action taken on affirmation of belonging to Europe. Vukovar, the centre of the region, is considered to be a strictly multiethnic environment, and its recognition by the world public sufficient for broader inclusion of those of responsibility into its faster development and growth of higher quality.

Establishment: Rijeka, 2001-11-16

History and Programme:
The slogan “That’s it” was first carried in the independent paper of Vladimir Bebić at the local elections of May 2001. The results the party achieved may be seen from the fact that the Third Croatian Bloc got the third largest number of council seats both in Rijeka and on county level, and was one of the rare independent parties to pass the election threshold at both local and national level.

Organization of the party and formation of its programme only began in the autumn of 2000. the party aims at the creation of a Third Croatia by rallying support from smaller parties and organized groups from local elections, and by attracting the backing of civic associations, independent educated people, dissidents, the diaspora and emигre Croats. The third path is a form of resistance against present conditions and a way of better orienting the ordinary citizen to live on his earnings and create a better life for himself and his family, guided by the moral and humanist principles of a civilized society of equal citizens. The moral values of Croatian citizens have not disappeared but have been temporarily suppressed. The political elite have forced them to struggle for existence, to spend years trying to achieve their rights through the courts, to apologize to politicians for their existence and for being unemployed, for belonging to other nationalities, for being registered as unemployed or members of another party, for thinking for themselves, for having a memory. The rebuilding of Croatian society is a process that can not be achieved on the level of politics alone, but it is politicians that must initiate, support and guide it. the Third Croatian Bloc aims to create a national climate that will favour and develop new forms of consciousness for a third path for Croatia. The means to accomplish this are depoliticization, new economic and social policies, decentralization and the preservation of variation. For some the end of the last millenium represents the end of modern civilization. In the new millenium we register the domination of computerization and new technology but also paedophilia, drugs etc. Only a few have realized the need for reaffirmation of what sustains this world, and that is love. Love of ordinary people, love of the citizen from the street and love of the nation.

History and Programme:
The Croatian Bloc – Movement for Modern Croatia was founded at a time when the lack of will and indecisiveness of the bureaucratised political scene to provide answers to most important vital issues threatened the economic and social system of the state. The Party emerged as an expression of aspirations to reassemble all Croatian potentials, in order that is should emerge from continuous political and economic crises, increased social conflict, the decrease of work and social rights, economic regression and impoverishment.
The Croatian Bloc wants to return politics to appreciation of fundamental interests and citizens’ requests. As a party of Croatian integralism and “Tudjmanism”, the Croatian Block builds its policy on values of the Croatian War of Independence, unity of the Croatian homeland and the Croatian diaspora, and clear utterance and defence of national interests.
The Party therefore accepts European standards emphasising as its goal the actualisation of certain rates of economic growth, which will ensure that Croatia becomes closer to Europe as community of equal and sovereign states.
